

THE DINER STANDOFF

Budget & location notes

Quick rundown for the diner sequence (we've been tracking it internally under the code diner-standoff-01). Studio's given us a hard ceiling of twelve thousand dollars for this whole stretch, wants it wrapped inside two shooting days, and is capping the crew at ten bodies on set. They've also asked us to keep it to two hero locations if we can, since every extra company move eats into both the schedule and the number above.

Rates below are per day. The schedule isn't locked yet, so I've priced a single day at each of them for now and we'll revise once the board is up.

Route 66 Diner

Our cheapest anchor at $4,200 for a full day, and the move-in fee is $900. It's home base for most of the sequence. Tight space, tops out around 15 people comfortably, and yes, we need the standard shoot permit for it.

Harbor Docks

The expensive one: $5,200 a day, plus a $1,300 hit every time the company physically relocates out there. Capacity's around 20, and it's public waterfront so a permit is required, no way around it.

Old Warehouse

The wildcard. Daily rate's $3,800, move-in runs $1,500, and because it's privately owned we're actually permit-free there, which helps. Can hold up to 25 if we ever need the extra room.
